The French on their part have not been ide during the last few days. Thiaumont Farm bristles with well-placed nachine guns, and the German masses, toiling up the slope which leads to the French positions, have been driven back again and again, while their reierves have been kept copiously showered by sprays of shells from the French batteries at the rear and on the other side of the river.

It is possible for the Russian troops to press forward without regard to the situation on the battle line north of the marshes, which have proved to be a marshes, which have proved to be a safe flank protection. It is possible, in other works, for the Russians to conduct a wholly independent offensive on the 300-mäe front now under attack.

Effect on Rumania.

The real importance of the campaign in Bukowina lies in its possible effect on Rumaria and the Balkan situation. By the demonstration of a dominating force on the Rumanian border it is believed here that Russia could gain the military support of Rumania, and at last strike through that country at Bulgaria.

last strike through that country at Bulgaria.

The cooperation of the Franco-Serban forces at Salonica in this move for which they have been preparing for several months—would crush the Bulgariass, give the Allies mastery of the Balkans and isolate and bring about the surrender of Turkey, in the opinion of military observers. This would be accomplished in three months.

General Brusiloff has the alternative RIII CAR CO

General Brusiloff has the alternative of following up his victories in Bukowina with an immediate drive through the Carpathians against the plains of Hungary or of seeking to influence the Balkan situation through Rumanian participation in the war. The majority of military critics here believe that pressure will be brought to bear on the Russian commander to follow the latter course.

Believing Russia to be entering upon an era of industrial expansion similar to that undergone in the United States after the close of the Civil War, a pamphlet called "Commercial Russia," which states that Russia needs and will welcome the investment of American capital, has just been issued by the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce.

The pamphlet, prepared by a Russian economist, speaks of the underveloped natural resources of the country. It points out that foreign capital is needed by Russia as much as foreign countries need to make use of the opportunity of an almost undeveloped market.

that the garrison fled in disorder when the Eussians brought their great guns to bear on the position.

The German offensive in the north, the region of Jacobstadt and Krevo, appears to have been halted. Its purpose—to givent the Russian attention in the south and bring about a transfer cf troops to the north—was bound to fail, even if the drive were attended with successes, military authorities here declare.

Opportunity of an almost undeveloped market.

The advantage the United States now enjoys in being neutral and in a position to extend her frade, is emphasized. And it is further shown that concrete industries, such as timber, the railroads, and mines, need only expired to develope them to the advantage of both Russia and the capitalist.
